2020 Workshops Call for Papers

Canadian TCSL Association

By now, most universities in Canada and many around the world have announced the teaching mode in the fall term 2020-21 will be moved online, either synchronously or asynchronously or a combination. Many K-12 schools are offering virtual learning right now. This new move has definitely posed new challenges, and opportunities to some extent.

Because of the emergent issues we are facing, the Canadian TCSL Association Board has decided to defer our symposium scheduled on August 22 to next year, and instead organize a series of virtual workshops in July together with our annual AGM to share better practices, strategies, and resources with a focus on remote teaching and learning in the context of e-learning. The workshops are free and available for everyone who are interested or are in the process of getting prepared for teaching in the fall term.

To propose a workshop, please fill in the following form to let us know what you can offer <https://forms.gle/yEpGENMiL8XQuMxS8> by June 15th. We will notify you for acceptance by June 30th. Simply click open the form, fill in the required information (it won't take long) and press the "Submit" button. If you want to keep a copy for your own use, click the "Send me a copy of my responses" button right above the "Submit" button.

Presenters accepted for the 2020 symposium will be guaranteed a spot of presentation in next year's symposium. For those who have already paid the registration fees for the 2020 symposium, we encourage you to keep the fees for use in 2021 symposium. We could also return the fund upon your request.

Thanks a lot for your attention and support!
